

The golden boy with the golden ticket

On the 29th of January the last ever ticket was found by the luckiest boy ever; Charlie bucket. In London this spectacular event occurred when Charlie found a fifty pence piece in the snow and popped in to his local corner shop, Chocoholic heaven. Then Charlie purchased the wonka bar that concealed the last ever golden ticket. A witness claims to have said "I'll give you fifty pounds for the ticket and a new bicycle!" another said "are you crazy? I'll give him five hundred pounds for it. Do you want five hundred pounds young man?" Charlie simply replied to the offers with a simple no and ran out of the shop. Racing to his battered house from the shop he yelled at all his family "I've found the last ever ticket! It's now mine!"

Until the 21st of January only three tickets had been found by Augustus gloop, violet Beauregard and veruca salt. On the 21st of January the fourth limited edition, ultra rare golden ticket disappeared from the ticket hunt and into the hands of thirteen year old boy mike teevee from Denver Colorado.

An anonymous source told us briefly about mike teevee. "To find the ticket all he did was look at the manufacturing dates offset by weather. Also why on earth did he participate if all he really wants to do is play video games, HE DOES NOT DESERVE THE TICKET!"

Charlie bucket is the luckiest twelve year old boy in the world as he found the last ticket. Once his parents heard the exciting news they leaped with joy and were incredibly pleased to know that Charlie had found a golden ticket. We have been told that his parents said this on the subject. "We're so surprised at our Charlie as he couldn't find it on his birthday nevertheless he's succeeded now. Charlie we are so proud of you." While his grand parents were equally as pleased as his parents and if not equally as pleased then even more pleased. "YIPPEE! Charlie you've got wonka's last ever golden ticket in your hands! You do know what this means don't you. It means you are most definitely the luckiest boy in the world. Charlie lives in a cramped, battered house with a hole in the roof which is the size of an elephant. For lunch every day Charlie has to have cabbage soup. Only his father works though unfortunately his father just lost his job so the family are running out of money. Every day from Monday to Friday, Charlie is lucky as he gets to go to shire land oak cottage senior school to be educated for six hours.

Charlie bucket with his ticket in the factory.

When Charlie got the ticket he instantly remembered his first two previous tries because on the eighteenth of December it was Charlie's birthday and Charlie got excited as he knew that every year for his birthday he got a chocolate bar. Once mister wonka announced that "five golden tickets to his factory" had been hidden inside ordinary chocolate bars, chocolate was disappearing fast. However Charlie stayed calm and waited for his birthday. Sadly he didn't get a ticket on his birthday. On the 28th of December Charlie's grandfather Joe gave Charlie a fifty pence piece to go and get a chocolate bar so they could try again at finding a ticket. At first Charlie refused to spend his grandfather's money although after a while he thought "I can try again. Grand dad's let me have another go. Okay Joe, I'll do it." The result was just chocolate, and then of course on the 29th of January he found the limited edition ticket.

Charlie and his family are incredibly surprised and pleased about all of this. Apparently every day Charlie wished to find the ticket and finally he had his wish granted two eye witnesses said that they would give Charlie money for the legendary ticket. The shop keeper who saw everything said "well done kiddo. You've found wonka's last golden ticket. In my shop too." Charlie simply said about the whole thing "thank you!"

Finally the search for the golden tickets is now over. We look forward to interviewing the lucky winners after their exciting experience in the factory. (The visit is on the 1st of February) what is the special prize? And more importantly who will win it?

Reported by Daniel Abbott and ruby Richards.