

BUCKET FULL OF CHOCOLATE

Yesterday the most miraculous thing happened...the last golden ticket was found by Charlie Bucket! Unfortunately his family is not very wealthy therefore it was like a dream come true. Despite being poor they still enjoy living their life even with the tough circumstances they face. He lives in London, England where the weather can be very severe in the winter. This can be a massive problem as they have a gigantic hole in their roof!

However the first winner from Düsseldorf, Germany had a completely different story! Augustus Gloop, the 'greedy chocoholic monster,' found the first ticket to a trip of a lifetime,' someone stated who wishes to remain anonymous. His mother, Mrs Gloop (aged 38) explained 'he eats so many candy bars a day it was impossible for him not to find one!' Confused the boy kept eating, eventually he could taste something wrong, as 'it tasted horrible-he reached in his mouth to find the first golden ticket,' she elaborated enthusiastically. The second golden ticket winner was Veruca Salt who lives in Buckinghamshire, England, as we've heard she's a 'disgusting spoilt little girl'. Surprisingly she didn't just find it with luck,

Mr Salt (her dad) ordered his workers from nuts and co to unravel as many chocolate bars they could get hold of, instead of shelling peanuts. The third lucky golden ticket winner is the gum-chewer champion Miss violet Beauregard from Atlanta, Georgia. Apparently she led off the gum and went straight to candy bars. She boasts 'I'm a winner, and whoever those other kids are I'm going to beat them to the prize.' Mike Teevee from Denver, America bizarrely found the fourth golden ticket and this was DEFINETLY out of pure luck. He informed us 'I only bought one candy as I don't like chocolate that much!' In my opinion I would do what ever it takes to find the magical golden ticket.

But back at the poor old broken house where the bucket family live they only have two rooms and only one proper bed which the grandparents lie in day in day out. Dreadfully poor little Charlie sleeps in a room by himself with an incredibly wide hole in the roof above his head as well as that he doesn't even have a proper bed to sleep in. consistently everyday for dinner they have cabbage soup.

All five lucky golden ticket winners

As Charlie only had three attempts at finding the marvellous golden ticket it was quite a bit of luck! The first time he tried to find one was on his birthday. Despite the fact it was his only birthday present he still shared it around with his kind and caring family. But as you can tell he did not find the golden ticket, which he had been longing for. The second attempt his generous granddad gave him a one dollar note to spend on a Willy Wonka scrumptious marshmallow fudge delight. Rapidly he sprint home to open the candy bar with his granddad, but unfortunately he didn't find the rare golden ticket. One afternoon he was just walking along the street and he found a five dollar note on the cold, frosty street.

He grabbed it running as fast as he could! Finally he got to the shop; he bought a Willy Wonka scrumptious marshmallow fudge delight. Slowly he unwrapped the candy bar and saw something shimmering. He had found it. The last golden ticket!

Charlie explained to us that a lady in the shop offered him five hundred dollars! But Charlie did not take that amazing amount of money!

As his family are very poor it was a massive shock to them. One of his grandparents exclaimed 'YIPPEE!' He was so excited! As Charlie is so generous he said 'we need the money more than the chocolate!' but of course he got persuaded to just go and enjoy it!

As we all know the last and final golden ticket has been found by Charlie Bucket. So the search is over! The five lucky winners shall be going to the chocolate factory on the first of February!
