

LUCKY LONDONER FINDS LAST TICKET

Finally, Wille Wonka's competition draws to a close as a poor, generous London boy, Charlie Bucket, finds the last Golden Ticket. This morning, the lucky child went to the corner shop and came out with the last Golden Ticket, eyes wide with shock.

Charlie Bucket, the last winner of the Golden ticket and his family.

Amazingly, Charlie lives in a ramshackle one roomed house in the middle of London with his mother, father and four grandparents. Unfortunately Charlie's father, the only working family member, recently lost his job at the toothpaste factory. Therefore the Bucket family are now staving and out of money. Charlie reported that every day he walked around the legendary chocolate factory wishing and hoping that he will soon find the golden ticket.

Although Charlie had had already tried two times beforehand, it was third time lucky for the eleven year old boy. Strolling along the snowy ground Charlie tripped over a $1 note. This was his chance. Slowly, Charlie made his way to the corner shop and asked for a chocolate which apparently was a Wonka's Wipple Mellow Fudge delight. As the shopkeeper handed Charlie the chocolate bar, Charlie trembled with anticipation. Finally he ripped open the wrapper and there, in front of him was the last Golden Ticket! As soon the Shopkeeper, Bill saw the ticket; he apparently shouted "It's a Golden Ticket! In MY shop!"

Hassled by the passing crowd, the lucky boy ran all the way to his hungry family. As he got there he slowly glanced at the shiny, important ticket and carefully told his old family that his dream had come true, and that he was going to the world's most popular factory. It is apparent that the entire Bucket family were delighted at Charlie's news, but anybody near the house, including our news team, definitely knew that Grandpa Joe was ecstatic because as soon as Charlie told him, he got out bed for the first time in fifty years, and shouted an ear-splitting "YIPPEEEEEEEEE."

Charlie, along with the other four successful children, will go to Wille Wonka's factory tomorrow, and experience the once in a lifetime opportunity. Even though Charlie is one of London's poorest boys, he is the last winner of the competition and may therefore be in with a chance of winning the grand prize, Wille Wonka's factory!
