

Charlie Bucket the Golden Boy

Charlie Bucket is a poor 11 year old boy who lives in a toppled down damp house with his family. Therefore it is very cramped! A family friend quoted that Charlie was a very generous kind boy who loves to share things with people. Finally he had a lucky break by finding the 5 pound note.

Charlie Bucket, the poor 11 year old boy, finally found a 5 pound note then joyfully walked into the one stop. The corner shop was amazing as he had never seen so much candy in his life. Charlie wiped the cold ripped 5 pound note then gave it to the shop keeper. When the man gave the candy bar to Charlie he slowly tore the wrapper off the sweet candy bar. Then he saw a bright light then he ripped it off a bit more. Finally Charlie found the last shinning golden ticket. Jumping up and down with excitement Charlie shouted “a golden ticket! I found the last golden ticket.”

Now he could go to the amazing chocolate factory he ran home sprinting, with the precious shiny golden ticket scrunched up in his small sweaty hand, back to his poor old family. When he got home to his slanted old, tatty house he jumped up and waved his shiny ticket and said “look the precious golden ticket its mine!”

Grandpa Joe Jumped for joy as Mr Bucket read out the details on the ticket. They decided that Grandpa Joe would take Charlie on this trip of a life time, at the wonderful chocolate factory!
