

The Solihull News

CHARLIES BUCKET OF LUCK

Breaking news! as wonks world wide competition comes to an end, a poor school boy Charlie Bucket finds the remaining ticket. London's buzzing with excitement, to see his reaction, after finding the dollar on a winter's day in a icy path leading up to the old tatty shop.

Charlie Bucket, an 11 year old boy, lives in a one bedroom house accommodating his elderly grandparents also a loving mom and Dad. Grateful Charlie prays every night for the oncoming future. Reportedly his mom quote "He has been exited ever since the world of the legendary competition spread across the world!

Considering the competitive search Charlie tried again desperate to get hands on the reaming ticket. 3rd time lucky.

Apparently he picked out an old tatty dollar hiding underneath the ice cold path. Shivering with pain booming cars passing by he couldn't believe his luck that he had found a dollar let alone the last ticket in the shop. "I wished to sell this ticket as my father recently lost his job working in the toothpaste factory However my family insisted that I kept it and joined in the epic once in a life time chance.

When Charlie finds the remaining ticket.

Charlie tells us all about how much he has being hoping for this life changing opportunity, and what he did to get this chance. Also he describes all of his hopes and dreams for his friends and family. "Any way you never know what could happen on this amazing Experian's."

Charlie Bucket, from a poor background, held his head high after unsuccessfully attempts at finding the ticket on his first and second time. Charlie was amazed once he found the golden ticket every one had been searching for. Bucket described what he is expecting in this experience and how much he will love being inside the factory.

On the opening day we will have reporters at the entrance of the factory who will be reporting on whats going to be happening. Tomorrow the lucky winners will stand side by side ,standing with pride, will enter the world of chocolate greeted by the Willy WonKa himself and soon after that he will soon announce the lucky winner !

By Lucy and Taylor