

CHARLIE CHOMPS UP THE LAST CHOCOLATE TICKET.

While WonKas competition drew to a close, the final (but real!) ticket was found. This morning, in London, England Charlie Bucket opened the miracle chocolate bar. Amazingly this poor lucky little boy happened to have brought the chocolate bar which included in final golden ticket.

Unfortunately this opportune boy is very badly off and lives in a 2 room cottage, with a hole in the roof. In this old shack, there live Mr and Mrs Bucket, Grandpa Jo, Grandma Josephine, Grandpa George and Grandma Georgina and Charlie.

As his birthday was coming up Charlie received, once again, a "WonKas Whipple Mellow Fudge Delight!" however it did not contain the shimmering golden ticket. The next day Grandpa Jo gave him £1.50 and told him to spend it wisely. Thankful he went to the local corner shop to buy a WonKas Nutty Creamy Sensation. Carefully he opened the creamy chocolate; yet again it did not contain the mysterious ticket. Charlie told us how he was "gutted I couldn't believe it." Tearfully he walked home, smelling the Chocolate Factory with every step. Suddenly he spotted a shinning, glittering sparkle, and then sprinted over. It was a coin.

He soon went back to the corner shop, again, and asked for the Charlie Bucket's house same chocolate bar. He stopped. Then opened it. There it was—the burnished lustrous last golden ticket.

"It's the last golden ticket, Wily WonKas golden ticket, in my shop too!" reported the shop keeper. Full of pressure Charlie, who was clutching his ticket to the legendry chocolate factory, was offered 50 even 500 pounds for the glistening key to the magical place however he ran home to tell his parents the sensational news. While being at home he said to his parents "a women offered me 500 pounds for the ticket, I bet someone else would pay more, we need the money more than we need the chocolate." Then he went to his room and dreamt about the chocolate factory. Eventually they soon compromised that he should and would go.

Charlie and the 4 lucky winners Veruca Salt, Augustus Gloop, Mike teevee and violet Berugard will be at the factory tomorrow. Willy WonKa will personally show them around his chocolate factory. I wonder who will win the prize?
