

Choco Charlie

Charlie Bucket, a very kind selfless boy, found the last life-changing ticket which allows him into the legendary chocolate factory owned to the mysterious Willy Wonker. Shockingly he had only tied his luck twice; on his second try he found a pound on Wonker road to be correct it was a snowy day. A quote from Charlie himself "I'm so honoured to be holding this ticket right now and to be going to the grand factory."

But Charlie was not the only winner, first it was Augustus Gloop, from Dusseldorf, Germany. After three hours past a thirteen year old girl named Veruca Salt from Buckinghamshire won. At 17:55 a girl; who had won a lot of other trophies, opened the luxury wrapper to find a wonderful golden ticket and chocolate, her name, Violet Beauregard. Little did they now that Mike Teeve the Fourth winner was walking home at that moment, with a golden ticket in his hands.

Charlie Bucket is very poor who only cares about his family. Although Violet is favourite to win the mystery prize I think, I want Charlie to win. Surprisingly, so far every body who has grasped a golden ticket have been wealthy but Charlie is nearly homeless, in fact his family is the complete opposite of Mr. Salt's.

Charlie's grand parents who all sleep in the same bed who eat Cabbage soup. But with one sight of the golden ticket Grandpa Joe jumped up and screamed "Yippee!" despite not walking for 15 years and aged 86. Shockingly Charlie wanted to sell the ticket but luckily grandpa George explained "Don't sell it Charlie, there's only five of them in the world and money is printed every day only a dummy would sell it for money."

Finally the search for wonka's golden tickets is over there's been riots in Japan and Jedward have bought a chocolate factory in India, there's only one question that everybody's been thinking. What are they going to do in there?

By Thomas woodhams & James Marshall

Wonka's Whipple Scrumptious Fudge mallow Delight

