

Struck With Luck

Charlie Bucket an unfortunate, impecunious boy coincidentally found the final golden ticket on the 31st of January in London 1935. Luckily he discovered a glimmering pound coin, and with that money he bought a wonka's Whipple scrumptious fudge mallow delight, within revealed the last golden ticket. Unexpectedly a curious old man offered the poor boy 50pounds along with a brand new bike; however the youthful lady beside the old man put aside that offer and requested 500pounds for the rare golden ticket.

Surprisingly, the fortunate Charlie Bucket found this magnificent ticket the day before the deadline. The previous golden tickets were founded by: Augustus Gloop, the first lucky winner to find a golden ticket, in 1935, 3rd December. A passer-by quoted, "Augustus is over-addicted with chocolate, I'm surprised he can walk considering he's a fat blob." The second fortunate winner is Veruca Salt, a lovely 13 year old, however, a witness commented, "Veruca is a spoilt little brat that cheated and should give this once in a lifetime opportunity to someone else." Not long afterwards, Violet Beauregard received the third ticket, weirdly; Violet has been chewing the same piece of gum for 3 months! The winner before Charlie is Mike Tevee, who is addicted to computer games, paying no attention when being interviewed ON TV.

Charlie is a very unfortunate, poor boy living in a rotten, wooden old shack. His dad works in a toothpaste factory screwing the lids onto the tubes of the toothpaste. His mum doesn't work and they can only afford to have cabbage soup every night. In their tiny house lives four grandparents in one bed, and Charlie, has his own minute little bed and his parents have their bed.

Charlie was coming back from school one day and found one pound buried under the snow. When he bought this chocolate bar he slowly opened it and saw something golden, it was the final golden ticket. The shopkeeper had also spotted the rare golden ticket and said in a squeaky voice, "you've found wonka's last golden ticket, in my shop!!" Charlie ran straight home and shouted "the last golden ticket it's mine!!" Grandpa Joe took it and jumped out of bed and started dancing. Charlie's mum nearly fainted as Grandpa Joe had not got out of bed for ten years. Charlie said that we should sell the ticket for the money and then Grandpa George stated that only dummies would sell that ticket and asked him if he was a dummy.

The search for the famous five golden ticket's has now come to an end, now only the factory awaits for these lucky winners...
